

Job Title: Associate Professor of History and Culture

Location: American University in Vietnam, Da Nang, Viet Nam

Key Responsibilities:

- Teach undergraduate courses per semester in curriculum tailored to courses covering various historical periods, cultural studies, and societal impacts.
- Conduct rigorous research within chosen areas of expertise, leading to publications in respected academic journals, books, or edited volumes.
- Advise and mentor students on academic and professional development, helping them build portfolios and prepare for careers in their respective fields.
- Engage in ongoing academic discourse by attending and presenting at conferences.
- Contribute to the University's mission of interdisciplinary teaching and learning by collaborating with faculty across departments.
- Engage in activities that connect historical and cultural studies to the broader community, such as public lectures, workshops, or partnerships with local cultural institutions.

Qualifications:

- Ph.D. in History, Cultural Studies, or related discipline. Proven record of research and publications.
- A demonstrated commitment to diversity, equity, and inclusion in media representation and teaching practices.
- Strong interpersonal skills and a proven ability to engage and inspire students in a liberal art setting.

The American University in Vietnam is an equal opportunity employer committed to fostering a diverse and inclusive academic community.